

The Perfect Day

by Ms. Jaształ

Basking in the glory of a first-class luxury jet, being atop a splendid horse in a breezy Wisconsin meadow, and being surrounded by the excitement of a bustling city- does this describe your perfect day? Most likely not, yet it most certainly describes mine. Let me explain to you how my perfect day would unfold if I were given the opportunity.

First and foremost, I would board a first-class luxury jet at sunrise. The jet would land in my front yard as if I was an extremely famous celebrity, and I would excitedly charge up the steep steps to come aboard. The jet would be so stately and incredible that I would think to myself, This is almost as amazing as Air Force One! (Air Force One is the name of the president's private jet.) Upon boarding, I would immediately notice the plush, royal blue seats with sensors that could massage my back, neck, and legs. This jet would most importantly include a massive flat screen television that could double as a computer, where I could watch movies and play video games on demand. A virtual reality headpiece would also be included! I could also order meals using this system and have them custom prepared by my own personal chef on board. For an early breakfast, I would order syrupy pancakes, crispy bacon, an omelet prepared with cheddar cheese, and a tall glass of no-pulp orange juice. I would certainly enjoy the few hours I would spend on this jet on the way to my first destination of the day, Wisconsin. Basically, I could do almost anything I desired on this jet!

Landing in Eau Claire, Wisconsin would be my first destination, and immediately, I would run into my arms of my Aunt Shari. She then would know exactly what I desired- a ride on her friend's magnificent bay colored Clydesdale horse. What I especially like about this horse is that she looks as if she is wearing white stockings. I would choose to go horseback riding in the breezy meadows of Wisconsin because I have never had many opportunities to ride, and I know I would be safe because she would find someone to ride along with me. While on her friend's horse, I would admire the endless fields of wildflowers like periwinkles and dandelions.

Last, I would complete this tremendous day by telling the pilot I would like to visit America's city with the most skyscrapers- which is Chicago, Illinois. I know I would not forget my professional camera for this part because I would want to visit the Sears Tower and Shedd Aquarium. The Sears Tower is the tallest skyscraper in our entire nation, and when you rise to the 110th story, you can catch a glimpse of at least three states- Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana. The Shedd Aquarium is not far from the Sears Tower, and the exhibit that most fascinates me is the Wild Reef exhibit because it includes sharks like the blacktip reef shark and rays like the blue spot stingray. Most importantly, I love seeing the zebra shark because of the spots covering its body and its tail being over 10 feet long. While looking at these amazing underwater creatures, you get the feeling of "walking on water" because the floor is made of glass and the sharks swim beneath your feet. After that, I would head to the part of Chicago that offers shopping called the Loop, where there is a Hershey's store that sells chocolate galore. As soon as you step into the Hershey's store, you are amazed by the huge chunks of dark and milk chocolate fudge as well as the delightful scent. Near there, there is a massive two-story bookstore (which is my dream destination anywhere) that includes an endless amount of books in every category.

From there, I would know I had the perfect day because I would be able to ride in a luxury jet, relax when horseback riding in Wisconsin, and enjoy the exciting city of Chicago. How would you spend your perfect day?
